CLS is a theological graduate school of Lutheran Church—Canada, with the mission to form servants for Jesus' sake.

Ordinarily, applicants to the seminary have an accredited bachelor's degree, and six credit hours in each of Hebrew and Greek, but a limited number of students are admitted with a year of liberal arts courses in place of a complete bachelor's degree.

For information about the Master of Divinity Program for students with or without a degree, contact Jeff Nachtigall:

learn. grow. serve.

“My wife and I, with our three children, operated a tourist lodge north of Dryden, Ontario for twenty years...The final decision to come to the seminary was made as a family. Once agreed upon, obstacles and excuses fell out of the way.

There were sacrifices along the way, both financial and in time spent with family. But we also grew closer as a family and stronger in faith. I know that each day will be different but there is also great confidence and joy in being a servant for Jesus' sake, for His servants never serve alone.”

-Rev. James Wood (CLS 2004)

“At one time I thought I would be content as a grade school teacher, but my job satisfaction started to wane. Our biggest hurdle was finances, but we were able to care for all of our needs. Was our decision for me to go to seminary written upon the clouds? No. The ministry was a natural result of God having awakened our hearts to give our lives for service to Him.”

-Rev. Neil Stern (CLS 2000)
